About

Mack's Park, within the Belfountain Conservation Area, has been a defining feature of the village of Belfountain for over a century. The park has attracted thousands of visitors to its unique blend of a natural setting enhanced by landscape design.

Charles Wilson Mack and his wife Addie chose this site on the Credit River for their summer home in 1909. The property soon acquired the moniker "Mack's Park". In stark contrast to the area's nineteenth-century uses for water-powered milling and quarrying, the Macks beautified the site in the English

Picturesque style with the help of local resident Samuel Western Brock. The park was open to the public and became a regional summer destination for day visitors and others who built cottages in Belfountain.

While Mack's bungalow, two cottages and wooden structures have vanished, a significant number of other features from Mack's Park remain, including the dam, the grotto, stone terraces and stone steps, the tiered stone fountain, and the suspension footbridge.
